Focus group

Online

King's College London

We are looking for university students between the ages of 18-26 years who identify as neurodivergent, with or without a medical diagnosis, to share their experiences. You will be asked to participate in a focus group of 4-5 people carried out in a private research room at King's College London or online. You will be asked questions about your experiences with neurodiversity, friendships, support systems and life changes. You will receive £15 as a thank you for your contribution.
