Loughborough University

Researchers from Loughborough University and University College London are examining the link between our genetics and health. The researchers are looking for non-smoking males to attend Loughborough University.

All participants will receive:

1. Detailed feedback on their body composition and body fat percentage 2. Information on how their DNA can influence their health and risk of overweight and obesity
