We are interested in understanding how the “immune system”, that is, the system dedicated to fight infections in our body, may be involved in developing depression. To do this we would like to understand if when we have inflammation in the body, we have also inflammation in the brain.

We are looking for healthy volunteers to be able to come to see us either at the Institute of Psychiatry in King's College London (Denmark Hill) and at Hammersmith Hospital on a total of 4...
