Past research has suggested there may be a link between childhood experiences and eating behaviour. The purpose of this research is to explore if there are any links between childhood experiences and eating habits and to see if there are other factors that might impact our thoughts about eating, such as stress or worries. The first survey should take no longer than 10-15 mins to complete. You will receive one survey each evening for 7 days, which should take no longer than 5 mins to complete.
