University College London

This study will entail taking a 30min critical thinking test, and then keeping a log of the main fiction and nonfiction texts you read for a period of 2 weeks, and then taking the test a second time. Unless you are assigned to the control group, you would also be given 5 set texts to read (about 11,000 words in total). The daily reading log should not take more than 10 mins maximum each day to complete. You can register your interest, and we will be randomly selecting participants to take part.
