Nottingham Trent University

The study aims to investigate social identity, social networks and eating disorder recovery amongst young people aged 16-25. We would like to know more about the places and people that young people turn to for help with any eating habits that they are worried about. The online survey will take approximately 15 minutes to complete. We will ask you some questions about your thoughts and feelings around different sources of help (such as family, friends, and online groups) and about well-being.
