King's College London

We are looking for participants aged 16-19 to take part as control participants in our study. We are studying anxiety in young people to understand more about how it relates to changes in mood (i.e. feeling happy, sad, irritable etc.). Taking part in the study will involve an interview and questionnaires, as well as tracking mood over two weeks using your phone. Participants will also be asked to give a sample of their saliva. To take part, you must NOT have a parent with bipolar disorder.
